PROFESSIONAL PROFILE

I have been an employment law trial attorney since 2008. Though my focus is representing employees, I have also represented employers in defending employment claims. I have litigated hundreds of cases, some through jury trials, bench trials and arbitration hearings. Realizing the value of mediation along with the risks of litigation, I began training as an employment law mediator to help parties resolve their disputes without the risks of trial. My approach to mediation is like no other. The key to resolution is cooperation, not competition. By finding the mutual interests, I can help create value for both sides in reaching resolution through a truly collaborative process.
